

This year with the ugliness coming from so many sides of the various -isms that dominate our world, no sound bites will suffice to capture recent sad events in this annual reminder of our connection to each other. But it is worth remembering a quote from the past from one of us ordinary folks who gave his life hoping to make the world a better place...

*Darkness cannot drive out darkness, only light can do that.
Hate cannot drive out hate, only love can do that.
—Rev. Martin Luther King, Jr. ***

Notes:

* not only nearly crippling the airline industry, but many tourist destination economies that depend on airborne American arrivals...

 this quote comes from the Christmas greetings of Witness for Peace, a religious based American organization providing an unfortunately still necessary presence south of our border monitoring US supported violence against impoverished populations.
